

Donuts of Mass Destruction!

Audition Scene Dialogue

Young Male or Female Actor

Notes: In this scene, Trixie or Archie is an Archaeopteryx child. The Archaeopteryx was a dinosaur that evolved into birds. Sixty-five million years ago, when all of the dinosaurs on the planet perished, the species that had evolved into birds somehow survived.

In the story, Teryxie or Archie has to leave the Yucatan for their own safety. Organized crime is killing young flying dinosaurs for a new and nasty business. Teryxie or Archie, in this dialogue, says a final farewell to a parent. The Parent voice for the above dialogue is at the following address:

Parent: You must leave now. With your wings, you can reach a better place, a safer place. Fly westward across the mountains and don't stop until you reach the valley.

Teryxie/Archie: I don't want to go without you!

Parent: You must. There's too much danger here.

Teryxie/Archie: But why?

Parent: It has to be. Remember what we've always told you? How some things are written in the stars?

Teryxie/Archie: I remember.

Parent: Go now. There's no time to lose.

Teryxie/Archie: Goodbye, Mom. Goodbye, Dad.
